Steve Podborski skied his way into the record books in a sport dominated by European teams. Podborski led the team dubbed the "Crazy Canucks" for their high-flying performances on the world's most dangerous ski hills. He was the first non-European man to win an Olympic medal, and the first to capture a World Cup Downhill title. To this day, no other North American man has won the World Cup title, a feat that Podborski accomplished no less than eight times. Podborski remains active in the Olympic movement. He tackles life with the same fearlessness and enthusiasm as he attacked the world's most challenging slopes.

Audiences are inspired and entertained by this energetic and inspirational speaker.
